Bruce Catton Says:

Turn Relief Back to States? 'No!' Says WPA's Hunter

WASHINGTON —When congressmen start yelling about politics and inefficiency in WPA —as some very important ones are now doing, lustily— the man on the receiving end of most of the talk is a slim, slangy, dark-haired chap named Howard Hunter, deputy administrator of WPA.

As No. 2 man in the WPA high command, Mr. Hunter is the target at which the congressional critics of WPA usualy elect to shoot. So—I went around to see him, and ask him if maybe things wouldn't be improved if the whole work-relief program were turned back to the states as some of the critics have been suggesting.

Mr. Hunter leaned back in his chair, hoisted his feet to his desk—thereby revealing that he wears no garters —and lit a cigaret.

Blames Local Groups for Politics

"That way," he said, "you'd simply multiply the politics there might be in WPA by the number of governmental units you'd turn it back to. Since, in most states, it would go back to townships and cities, you'd be multiplying it by 10 or 11 thousand.

"The main source of political manipulation in WPA is in the local relief officies and by local politicians on both sides of the fence, Democratic and Republican.

"The argument now is that, of course there's a danger of local politics entering into the thing if the program is turned back to the states, but that the federal government could stort of supervise it and keep it out. Then, in the same breath, they raise unshirted hell because we're in politics now. If you can't keep politics out of one organization, how are you going to keep it out of 12,000?"

Says Purge Has Worked

Mr. Hunter remarks that considerable tightening-up in regard to politics has taken place since Congress, this last winter, passed a law making it illegal for anyone to promise anybody a work relief job as a reward for political activity. The bill also provided that no one employed in any sort of supervisory capacity on the work-relief program could continue to be active in politics.

About 100 administrative employes of WPA, who held jobs on county political committees, acted as precinct chairmen, or inother ways were politically active, have resigned since that law was passed.

In addition, WPA, has fired 108 foremen supervisors and others who refused to give up political activity. Eight political workers in New Jersey were recently dropped from WPA administrative rolls, for instance.

"There've been plenty of commplaint that this robs people of their civil right," says Mr. Hunter. "We've even been accused of being Fascists. You know, there is a nice question about civil rights there. When we say that a WPA foreman or supervisor can't belong to a party county committee or go to a political convention, we come close to depriving him of his civil rights.

"That of course, is a question for Congress and the courts to decide. Meanwhile, if it's a choice between leaving that regulation in or taking it out, I say leave it in; it does give us some real protection.' "

Fears System Would Vanish

One of Mr. Hunter's primary objections to turning the work-relief program back to the states is that in some cases it might simply mean the end of relief.

"Any grant-in-aid scheme which call on the states to put up some money would, in many instances, mean no relief at all," he says. "In some state no direct relief whatever is given to employables.

'I don't know what would have happened to some of those midwestern industrial states in last year's depression if we'd been operating on a grant-in-aid basis. Take Cleveland, for example.

"The WPA rolls there increased from 22,000 in December, 1937, to 79,000 in the midsummer of 1938. The point is that if there had, at that time, been any kind of system of federal grants based on state funds there just wouldn't have been any relief at all in Cleveland."

Refrigeration of Fruits Discussed at Meeting Here

Pre-Cooling of Cars Necessary for Perishable Products

MARKETING SCHOOL

Vegetables, Fruits Contain Much Field Heat When Harvested

"Proper and adequate refrigeration of fresh fruits and vegetables in transit and the pre-cooling of cars before leaving the shipping point are essential to successful marketing of highly perishable products, such as peaches, strawberries, and many other fruit and vegetable crops," said H. V. Cooper, assistant freight claim agent, Missouri Pacific lines, at the annual marketing school being held here Thursday.

This marketing school is an annual affair, one being held in each of the four districts of the state about this time of the year by the agricultural extension service of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

Fruit Heat Discussed

Mr. Cooper said that fruits and vegetables, when harvested in the field, contained a great deal of field heat, and that after being harvested they continued to live for some time by breathing or undergonig what is commonly called respiration, which is giving off moisture, and in turn causes the product to swivel or deteriorate in quality.

Cooling these products down to 40 degrees or below, if possible, stops respiration and prevents further deterioration. This allows a high quality product just after it comes from the field or orchard to be delivered to the market.

R. B. Landrum, supervisor, federal inspection service, in discussing the grading and inspection of fruits and vegetables, stated that proper grading and inspection of fruits and vegetables at the shipping point is another essential to successful marketing.

Grading these products and then officially establishing the grade by a licensed inspector makes of the product one which can go smoothly from shipping point to retailer with a minimum of lost motion and a maximum if returns to the shipper or grower.

Other Speakers

Other specialists from out of the state assisting with the marketing school are J. C. Yancey, southwestern representative of the Freight Container Bureau, Association of American Railroads, who discussed the types of containers and the loading and bracing of cars; J. H. Heckman, senior economist, Cooperative Research and Service Division, Farm Credit Administration, described the methods being used in selling fresh fruits and vegetables in this country at the present time.

Paul Eddlemon, county agent at Nashville, discussed the various types of marketing information available to farmers and shippers. Marketing defects due to production methods was discussed by Earl J. Allen, extension horticulturist.

The marketing school or marketing practice meeting was in charge of J. F. Rans, district agent, Agricultural Extension Service.

Physician Threatened by Slay-for-Pay Crime Syndicate

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Elusive "Kiss of Death" woman, Mrs. Rose Carina, known to have had at least five husbands, three of whom died under mysterious circumstances, was arrested Thursday by federal agents in connection with the Philadelphia investigation into a mass murder syndicate.

Dwight Brantley, FBI agent, declined to disclose where she was taken into custody nor where agents picked up the trail of the woman sometimes known as "Rose of Death."

Philadelphia authorities named her as one of the principal actors in the bizarre crime drama.

Witness Threatened

PHILADELPHIA.—(AP)—A threat of death for a physician who testified that a convicted insurance poisoner tried to buy typhoid germs from him resulted in a 24-hour police guard for him.

Dr. Henry E. D'Alonzo received the threat in a letter, the homicide squad revealed. It warned him to stop assisting police and the district attorney in their investigation of the East's murder-for-insurance syndicate.

Dr. D'Alonzo testified at the trial of Herman Petrillo that Petrillo had offered him $200 or $300 for some live typhoid germs." He had been called to treat Ferdinand Alfonsi for whose death later by poisoning Petrillo was convicted.

U. S. Is Lagging Says Lindbergh

House Committee Told Europe Is Ahead in Aviation

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh told a house committee the United States was lagging behind European nations in military aviation developments and urged increased research in this country to recover the lost ground.

Lindbergh appeared at a carefully guarded session of the house appropriations subcommittee, which is considering increased appropriations of $309,000,000 for the army, including $250,000,000 to complete the proposed expansion of the air corps to 5,500 planes.

The famous flyer gave the committee considerable information, members said, concerning the activities of European powers in the field of military aviation and supported the war department's plans to meet the situation.

Livestock Owners Warned to Clear Herds From Road

Prosecution of Owners to Be Sought by Sheriff Baker

MENACE TO PUBLIC

Many Complaints of Livestock on Paved Hope-Fulton Road

Sheriff C. E. Baker issued a warning Thursday to stockowners on paved highway 67 between Hope and Fulton that they must immediately keep their stock off the highway or face prosecution in court.

The sheriff said he was receiving daily complaints from citizens of Hempstead county and the motoring public because livestock was runing loose on the highway.

As many as 20 to 30 head of stock has been seen recently in one herd on the highway, Sheriff Baker said. This practice is endangering not only the lives of motorists, but to livestock as well, the sheriff pointed out.

He said that livestock was being turned loose near Fulton and the herd was grazing eastward toward Hope for a distance of three or four miles.

Baker said several motorists recently had had narrow escapes because of the livestock menace on the highway.

Warning signs are being posted in Fulton and at Sprudell. If the livestock is not cleared from the road immediately and kept up—then the livestock will be picked up and the owners prosecuted, Sheriff Baker continued.

He suggested that owners repair their fences on both the north and south side of the road. He estimated that the price of one cow would pay

Miller Insists On His Choice for Job

Cites Appointment of Lemley as Caraway's Selection

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator John E. Miller talked with President Roosevelt at the White House but he said nothing about their discussion of pending federal appointments in Arkansas.

This topic was an important reason for the White House call since the senator has contended his choice for United States marshal at Little Rock, Herbert Graves of Judsonia, should be given the post over Senator Hattie Caraway's favorite, Virgil C. Pettie, incumbent.

Miller's contention has been that

Jews Protest to Rule in Palestine

175,000 March in Demonstration Against British Plan

JERUSALEM — (AP) — Jews of all ages, estimated by leaders at 175,000 strong, marched and shouted in demonstrations throughout Palestine Thursday in a protest against the British government's decision to establish an independent Palestine under Arab control.

Up until noon the demonstrations were free of disorder in contrast to a clash Wednesday night at Tel Aviv where 25 persons were injured.

Jews said about 40,000 persons took park in the Jerusalem demonstration and that a similar number took part in the demonstration at Haifa, and even a larger throng at TelAviv, plus additional thousands in the agricultural settlements.

Howard Waddle to Engineer's Post

Will Join Staff of Arkansas Oil and Gas Commission July 1

The Star is in receipt of a letter from A. M. Crowell, director of the Arkansas Oil and Gas Commission, El Dorado, telling of the empending appointment of Howard (Mutt) Waddle of Hope to the engineering staff of the commission.

Mr. Crowell's letter follows:

"Thinking that you might be interested in an announcement to be made by O. C. Bailey, chairman of the Arkansas Oil & Gas Commission, concerning the employment of Howard Waddle, we are enclosing a brief list of the qualifications of Mr. Waddle.

"Mr. Howard Waddle was born and reared at Hope, Arkansas, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Waddle. He is 26 years of age and married.

"Mr. Waddle receives his Bachelor of Science degree in Petroleum Production Engineering this coming June from the University of Oklahoma. He is a member of Sigma Tau, national honorary engineering fraternity and ranks in the upper one third of his class scholastically.

"Mr. Bailey stated that he was chosen upon recommendation of Dean Carson of the University of Oklahoma Engineering School, not only for the reason that he is an Arkansas boy, but also because he has 13 months of experience with the Gulf Refining company and 29 months actual drilling experience with the Rex Drilling company.

"Mr. Waddle will join the engineering staff of the commission, which is now composed of five petroleum and natural gas engineers, on July 1st, 1939."

Gunfire Outbreak Occurs But No One Is Reported Shot

'Snipers,' Hidden in Mountains, Open Fire at Coal Miners

GUARDSMEN ON DUTY

Every Troop in Kentucky Ready to Move Into Harlan Zone

HARLAN, Ky.—(AP)—Two outbreaks of gunfire, one between state troops and an ambushed group with no casualties, marked increasing tenseness Thursday in the Harlan county soft coal field labor strife.

C. V. Bennett, operator of the Harlan Central Coal company at Totz, reported that "snipers" in the mountains fired about ten shots at men returning to work.

Bennett said troops on duty did not answer the fusillade.

Guards Stand Ready

Every national guardsmen in Kentucky has orders to be ready to move into the Harlan coal fields.

Brigadier General Ellerbe Carter, placed in full command of the trouble zone by Governor A. B. Chandler, at his press conference said;

"Things have been pretty rough instead of quiet-er. I want to tell you one thing, the situation will be handled if it takes all the national guard in Kentucky. The others have orders to stand by."

The governor at the state capitol said he was ready, if asked, to help bring about a settlement of differences between the United Mine Workers and the operators. At Washington Secretary of Labor Perkins said a labor conciliator was being sent to act as mediator. The governor also warned he would "make a show of force" to "prevent trouble."

The Harlan County Coal Operators' Association—with a membership of 42 mines in the county, employing upwards of 12,000 men—is the last of the three Kentucky dissenters from the New York union stop agreement.

Will Negotiate

W. J. Cunningham, president of the Harlan operators, speaking on the situation publicly for the first time, said the operators "are perfectly willing to stand on the wages and hours clauses of the old contract and to sit down and discuss the union clause" with the UMW.

George Titler, secretary to the Harlan district UMW, announced he had written the governor resigning as a member of the state unemployment compensation board and the state wage-hour board to take effect immediately.

Titler said he wrote Governor Chandler: "I do not want my record of 30 years as a labor leader contaminated by your administration."

The first detachment of 448 troops ordered into Harlan arrived from Ashland Wednesday night. The governor said these would bring the number of soldiers to "approximately 1250" here. General Carter said about 1100 more were available.

Landscape Meeting at Station Farm

Second Annual Event to Be Held on Thursday, May 25

The second annual state-wide landscape meeting will be held in the amphitheater of the University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture, Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station Thursday afternoon, May 25, from 2 to 4:30 p. m., according to announcement made by G. W. Ware, assistant director, in charge of the station.

The first landscape meeting held at the station last year was attended by more than 400 women from 20 counties. Preparations are being made for a larger crowd this year, as many individuals and groups of home demonstration and garden club women from south-Arkansas are expected to attend.

The program is arranged to give the visitors a practical, short course in improving the home grounds. Miss Ella Posey, district home demonstration agent, will discuss the general community landscape program; while J. R. Cooper, head, department of horticulture and forestry of the College of Agriculture will give a demonstration in plant arrangement. Earl J. Allen, extension horticulturist, will discuss pruning, fertilizing, cultivating, and spraying ornamentals; and Fred J. Shulley, extension forester, will demonstrate the planting and care of different shade trees.

There will be no long talks. All lectures will be demonstrated with actual models—shrubs, houses, lawns, walks, etc. Another feature of the program

Mexican Settlement Will Be Heartening Example

Best information from Mexico is that good progress has been made in settling the controversy over expropriation of American-owned old properties. Donald Richberg, representing the American companies, has concluded another series of discussions with President Cardenas, this time rather quietly at Saltillo rather than in the capital. Offical Mexican announcement is that progress was such that the chances are excellent for reaching an agreement.

If this advance information turns out to be correct, there will be good reason for both countries to rejoice.

With the world in a condition in which intrenational dealings have no better basis than naked force or the threat of force, peacable and reasonable settlement of this bitter controvesy would be a shining example to the whole world.

It would show that, given genuine goodwill and a determination to be reasonable and just, any international complication can be peaceably adjusted. The world needs an example like that right now.

When the settlement is made, as now seems probable, it will be on some such basis as this: Mexico will stand fir mon the expropriation; the oil properties will be hers. Operation will be more or less turned back to the American former owners on some condtion which will enable them to supervise the properties until they have taken out of them something approximating just compensation. Then wells, operation and all will gradually revert to Mexico hands, perhaps over a period of many years.

Neither side will be entirely satisfied by such a settlement. Certain stiff-necked Mexicans will always maintain that their government should hav steered a perfectly straight course, taken their chances of disaster, and told the world to go climb a tree. Certain equally stiff-necked American will always maintain that the U. S. government should have sent in the Marines at the first announcement.

But if settlement is really made on terms reasonably acceptable to both parties, it is probable that nine out of 10 people on both sides of the border will eventually be pleased.

Mexico and the United States are facing certain problems in common. Certain influences from abroad strike both with a common impact. The sooner this and all other controversies are cleared away, the sooner the road is opened wider for better understanding between two peoples who in the natur of things should be friends.

The desirability of this friendship goes beyond the present policies of the present governments of either country.

Governments and adminstrations come and go, policies are proposed, tried, and discarded. But through it all remains the fact that here are two neighbor peoples, with only a river dividing them, with many common problems.

Whatever brings them closer together in genuine understanding and friendship is good.

Breathing Is Important in Exercise; Do You Know How to Regulate It?

This is the fourth of five articles on how exercise affects YOUR body.

Whether it be a 100-meter dash in the Olympic games or a potato race at the lodge picnic at some time during your life you have been or will be called upon to perform as a runner.

And when that time comes you will realize—if you haven't already—the importance of breathing in athletic competition and exercise. The man or woman with the best trained breathing often wins by a margin attributable to that alone.

Athletes change their style of breathing according to the event. In the short dashes the racer breathes normally through the time when the starter says "On your mark!" At "Get set!" the sprinter will take a breath and hold it until the gun fires the start. He retains the breath until he is underway. Better sprinters hold the breath much longer than those who are untrained.

Swimmers differ in their style of breathing. Most, however, shorten the time when the breath is taken in and given out and increase the rate of breathing with the rate of the stroke.

Do you know how to breathe in golf?

Experts take a deep breath before the drive and hold it during the swing of the club. This serves to stiffen the chest muscles and aids in control of the arms. After the drive, they let out the air and breathe normally. During putting the breathing should be quiet and shallow.

The manner in which you breathe as you exercise has much to do with your efficiency. Training four or five weeks will increase the amount of erbon dioxide that you give out and the amount of oxygen you absorb during breathing. You should reach the peak after about four to six weeks of training.

You breathe more rapidly, of course, average person, your normal rate is about 17 or 18 breaths per minute Women breathe a bit more rapidly than men and all of us breath more rapidly when we are standing up than when we are sitting down.

At high altitudes your breath rate also is more rapid because of the lessened amount of oxygen. The breathing rate, to some extent, is determined by the size of the lungs.

Doctors refer to your "vital capacity." This represents the largest amount of air you can take in with a single breath. The average rate for a grown man is three quarts, for a grown woman, two quarts. The capacity of growing boys and girls is slightly less.

Cotton Road Successful in Area Near Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (AP) — Shelby county's quarter-mile-long experiment with "cotton roads" is a success, County Commission Chairman E. W. Hale reported. The asphalt roadway which has been in use almost two years is a section of the heavily-traveled main highway to Memphis airport.

The only flaw is a soft spot due to the settling of a fill, Hale said. No repair work has been necessary but work has had to be done on other sections built at the same time, but without cotton fabric.

Hale said a main advantage of the fabric is that it keeps the asphalt from "crawling" and forming ridges.

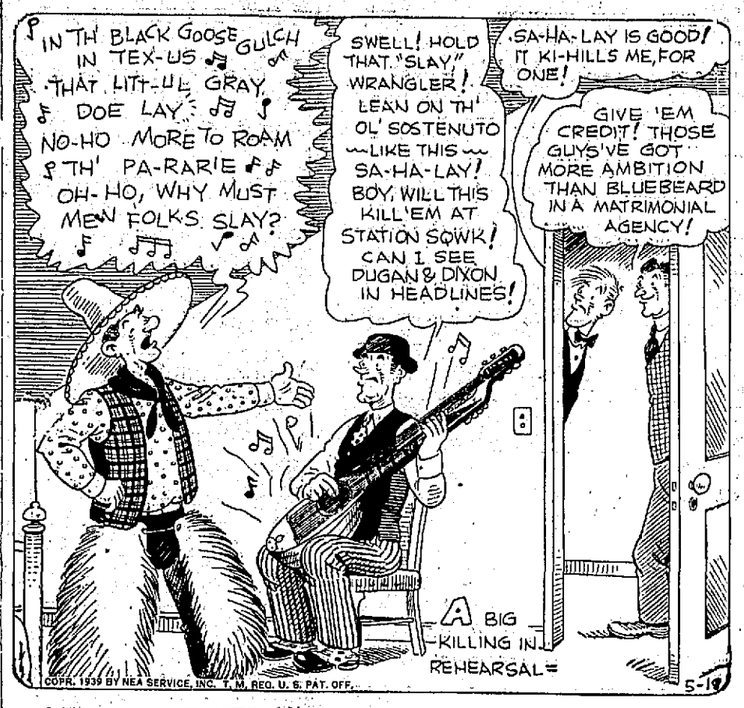

Oliver Wendell Holmes had a four-word definition for an afternoon tea: "Giggle, gabble, gobble, git."

The 187 presses in the U. S. government printing office produces approximately 4,000,000,000 impressions annually.

Pass It On

Have you had a kindness shown?
Pass it on.
'Twas not given for thee alone,
Pass it on.
Let it travel down the years,
Let it travel another's tears,
'Till in heav'n the deed appears—
Pass it on.
Did you hear the loving words?
Pass it on.
Like the singing of a bird?
Pass it on.
Let its music live and grow,
Let it cheer another's woe;
You have reaped what others sow—
Pass it on.

Have you found the heavenly light?
Pass it on.
Souls are groping in the night,
Daylight gone—
Hold thy lighted lamp on high,
Be a star in someone's sky—
Pass it on.
Be not selfish in thy greed,
Pass it on.
Look upon thy brother's need,
Pass it on.
Live for Him, you live again;
Live for Him, with Him you reign—
Pass it on.

Mrs. John P. Cox entertained on Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6 with a beautifully appointed tea at her home on South Elm street, honoring Mrs. Lamar Cox, a charming recent bride.

The attractive reception suite of the Cox home was filled with the beauty of spring time decorations, handsome red radiance roses were placed at points of vantage, great baskets and bowls held glorious clusters of pink roses and snapdragon in the library, where the birde's guest book was presided over by Mrs. R. L. Broach and Mrs. Don Smith.

The guests were greeted by Mrs. George Ware and presented to the receiving line by Mrs. O. A. Graves.

The receiving line included Mrs. John P. Cox, Mrs. Lamar Cox, Mrs. J. C. Orton, Miss Jane Orton, Mrs. W. J. Sandidge of Shreveport, La., and Mrs. Kenneth L. Spore. The guests were invited in to the dining room by Mrs. Chas. Dana Gibson and Mrs. Johnny McCabe. The beautiful flower arrangements in the dining room were in green and white. The tea table was laid with a handsome imported cloth of Italian cut work, with Venetian point lace, and centered with a silver bowl of bride's roses, white snaps, and maiden hair fern, each of the four corners of the table held the same lovely flower decorations in smaller arrangement. Tall white tapers in crystal holders gleamed among the lovely flower decorations on the buffet. Presiding at the punch bowls were Mrs. R. M. LaGrone and Mrs. Ralph Routon. Assisting in the dining room courtesies were Mrs. L. W. Young, Mrs. J. C. Carlton, Mrs. John A. Davis of Prescott and Mrs. Ferrell Baker.

Dispensing hospitality in the reception suite were Mrs. J. G. Martindale, Mrs. L. E. Fincher of Waldo, Mrs. Basil Newton of Little Rock, Mrs. Stith Davenport and Mrs. Sid Henry. About 225 guests called during the receiving hours.

In New York

By George Ross

NEW YORK — This way to the big show! So step along and see the wonder vity of the western hemisphere. The locale is World's Fair Town, the bus is ready, our vocal chords are tuned up, there's megaphone in one fist and a cane in the other. Let's go to. . . .

Broadway, where the playhouses are clustered along the sidestrees. . . the National at 41st Street with the sultry-voiced Tallulah Bankhead in "The Little Foxes"; and Katherine Cornell's majestic mumming in S. N. Behrman's footlight froth, "No Time for Comedy," at the Ethel Barrymore —two of the town's top theatrics. . .

Hubert's Flea Circus, with the doors flung wide open the hurly-burly that is Forty-second Street; and where Grover Cleverland Alexander appears daily in competition with a troupe of trained insects and freakdoom . . . the Minsky burlesque mart, with its regiment of torso twisters, and the New York Public Library only two two blocks away. . .

The beefsteaks at Jack Dempsey's, and Madison Square Garden smack across the street— with its year-roud ice-skating parlor on the roof . . Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe—rococco sentiment and the lustiest of all the nocturanal cellars.

Sardi's at lunchtime, with the celebraties staring each other down. . and the corps of songpluggers at Lindy's at three in the morning . . The Paradise and the Casa Manana, where the visiting fireman's idea of a Broadway cabaret comes to life twice nightly . . .The Radio City Music Hall—cinematic grandeur at its peak and the sofest loge-seats in town.

Swinging Down Swing Alley

Fifty-second Street :Jack White's nightly insantity at the 18 Club . . . Leon and Eddie's ribald bufoonery, raucous clowning at Jask Osterman's tabloid retreat and Bert Frohman's jive parlor, where they actually have a haven upstair to escape the swing tempos. . .

Barbecued porkers at the Pick-a-Rib diner . . . The Onyx, the Famous Door, the Swing Club and the Hickory House—valhalas all, for the jitterbugs . . and down at the end of the alley—St. Patrick's Cathedral, most eloquently beautiful of Manhattan's houses of worship.

Take Along Plenty of Folding Money

The East Side, where a white-tie and a lifted eyebrow are your best calling cards of all . . The Stork Club —jumping from dusk to curfew time with debs and celebrated imbibers of the literati and stage set, where a gentleman named Sherman Billingsley is king of American most fabolous cafe clique. . . Fefe's Monte Carlo, but don't even bother to peek inside unless you're wearing your best bib, tucker and bankroll.

John Perona's glittering El Morocco, with more jewelry 'neath one roof than at Cartier's . . Henri's casual Parisian eating house—the finest cuisine on the island. .

The Sert Room of the Waldrof-Astoria, the Persian Room on the Plaza and the swank roof atop the St. Regis—plushiest of the patrician playgrounds . . . and the tiny row of austere dwellings along Sutton Place, one flight up over the East River—the most expensive chunk of land in the city.

To Downtown Melting Pot

Downtown: (Go slow, driver) . .A cacophony of every accent but—American. . . The Yiddish theater actors arguing over the glasses of steaming tea at the Cafe Royale on Second Avenue and 13th Strtt. . .

Fourteenth Street—sidewalks pammed with hawkers, proletarian haranguers, the Salvation Army's elegant edifice west of Sixth Avenue and the wailing of the gypsy choir at the Russian Kretchman—Muscovite madness one flight downstairs.

Greenwich Village, phoniest of all Gotham's locales, with night clubs muchrooming in every alley but with not a Bohemian in a block . . The Whitney Museum of Art, just off 8th Street—dedicated to modern art. . Chinatown, the Bowery, Wall Street and the Battery—more fascinating than any theater.

One Doesn't Congratulate the Bride--Except on Wedding Cake

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Many mothers beg for a recipe for a beautiful but simple Bride's Cake which they can both bake and decorate themselves.

Here is a glistening and delicious answer, created especially for the glamorous occasion. If she follows the recipe, the cook herself will also be in line for congratulations.

Simple Bridal Cake

Three cups sifted cake flour, 3 teaspoons combination baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅔ cup butter or other shortening, 1¾ cups sugar, 5 egg whites unbeaten, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg whites, one at a time, beating very thoroughly after each. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla.

Bake in greased 15x9x2 inch pan in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 40 to 45 minutes, or until done. Spread with boiled frosting on top and sides of cake. Cut model bell out of wax paper, outlining on cake with tooth pick. Remove paper pattern and fill in outline with silver dragees. Decorate sides with white or tinted cocoanut.

Boiled Frosting

Three cups sugar, 1 teaspoon light corn syrup, 1½ cups boiling water, 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Combine sugar, corn syrup, and water. Bring quickly to a boil, stirring only until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly, without stirring, until small amount of syrup forms a soft ball in cold water, or spins a long thread when dropped from tip of spoon (240 deg. F.). Pour syrup in fine stream over egg whites, beating constantly.

Add vanilla. Continue beating with rotary egg beater 10 to 15 minutes, or until frosting is cool and of right consistency to spread. Use wooden spoon when too stiff for beater. Makes enough frosting to cover top and sides of 15x9x2 inch cake.

A glistening Bride's Cake with tinted cocoanut fringe and a silver wedding bell in the center. It is so simple to make that any moderately skillful home cook can be sure to win hearty congratulations on this contribution to the wedding feast.

Paul Harrison in Hollywood

Hot From the Cutting Room—How Oomph Battle Began—Dietrich Quits Trouser Style

HOLLYWOOD.—Short takes: It was one of Paramount's bright young publicists who thought up the stunt in which Yvonne Duval was supposed to be planning to use Ann Sheridan to gain the title of 'oomph girl," claiming prior right.

Miss Duval knew nothing about it; the press agent got the idea after seeing some of her photographs in the studio files.

So local papers printed the story and pictures, and Miss Duval got a lot of priceless publicity, and the happy press agents decided to call her in for interviews.

They telephoned the casting office and found that the actress had been off contract for three months! In fact, she was working at NBC and using her real name—Joan Castle. And now a couple of other studios have offered her movie contracts.

Sympathetic Hangover

In Cecil B. DeMille's regiment of yes-men is one who's so conscientious that he lies down whenever the boss is tired. . . . There's a producer who also has a faithful stooge. Whenever the executive has been out on a party, the underling shows up at the studio with a hangover.

Samuel Goldwyn, quarreling bitterly with the rest of the United Artists, is discussing an affiliation with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Such a deal wouldn't be a homecoming, because Goldwyn never had any connection with the company that bears his name.

Bette Davis will enact another lingering death in "Bolivar" . . . this time of yellow fever, a few months after her marriage to Errol Flynn.

At the local premiere of 'Nazi Spy" the audience was sprinkled with dozens of strange, stocky gents who bulged in their formal clothes and fidgeted in their seats among the stars. They were city and private detectives, planted to quell disturbances.

No More Trousers For Dietrich Legs

They have bleached Bob Taylor's dark sun-tan so that he'll contrast with the natives in "Lady of the Tropics." Hedy Lamarr, as a half-caste girl, is wearing very dark make-up. . . . Marlene Dietrich, still jobless at this writing, may return to Paramount for a spy picture. Incidentally, "Legs" never wears trousers anymore. She has gone very feminine, and in very short skirts.

That second change of directors in "Gone With the Wind"—George Cukor to Victor Fleming to Sam Wood—isn't supposed to be permanent. The overworked Fleming gets a rest. Meanwhile, four companies will shoot on the picture, gathered up odds and ends of backgrounds, crowd and battle scenes in an effort to wind up the production by July 1.

Sonja Henie's mother is always on her skating sets and is the unofficial but final judge of all the routine. After a take is made, the mother nods or shakes her head from the sidelines. If she disapproves, Miss Henie insists upon trying it again.

Mrs. Paul Muni likewise has the final word about any scene in which her husband plays. Incidentally, Muni recently was bitten by a stray dog and may have to take the Pasteur treatment. He said, "I thought I was finished with that character years ago."

But Her Heart Belongs to B-B-Broadway

Mary Martin, who strips and sings "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," is still turning down offers from Metro and expects to star in a new Broadway musical. She has reason to be grateful to the stage, for nobody paid her any attention when she languished at Metro on a $75-a-week stock contract.

One of the local night spots is warding off the wolf by staging a weekly nudist revue after the closing hour and at $10 and $15 prices. But police will soon take the wolf's place on the threshold.

A young director who has been working very hard and spending his nights rewriting script became worried because his name was not appearing in local papers and Hollywood bigwigs were not seeing him around town.

So he hired a press agent who planted scores of false items about romances and parties and such.

In a couple of weeks the studio head called in the director said, "You've been running around so much that you can't possibly give your best efforts to making pictures. We've decided to let you go."

Holland's Mobile "Dike" Against Flood of Invaders

Holland, traditional neutral in European wars, is nevertheless preparing for any emergency. Above, a Dutch submarine and a speedy destroyer are shown in recent North Sea maneuvers.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Child Is "At Home" Most in a House His Own Size

I often wonder just how different small children would be if they lived in a world of things as little as they are.

From time immemorial the human race has done its growing in early childhood looking up at things over its heads. Maybe we are the better for our reaching, maybe taller physically and more inclined to reach farther mentally.

It must have had, and still has, no doubt, something to do with inferiority. What would we be if we lived in a Gargantuan world with everything so immense we had to stretch on tip-toe to see, to touch and feel?

The scale of houses is not adapted to anything like children's size. Chairs tables, beds and bureaus all tower above them like Alps. And even though they can manage very well to look out of windows and reach for the sugar bowl, still the very bulk of things must be a bit overwhelming.

They are conditioned to it so they are not conscious of their limitations, as such; but surely they must sence that a world too heavy and big for them goes about its business above the floor where they play.

I always wanted a playhouse. It never happened. Not many playhouses happen, do they? For one thing, they cost money, and for another they take up room that is not always to be had. And then, too, renters never know where they may be living next.

This is just an idea of mine, but maybe it is worth something. I believe there would be a real to-set-up playhouse, weather proof but light enough to handle. It could be taken down in the winter and set up in summer. It should have some windows and a door and a little porch if possible.

What I longed for more tha anything else was a little pair of stairs. Eight or ten would have been about right, but a pair of stair which I could climb up and down all day long. And I wanter a little fence, with a gate I could open and close. I must have wanted them all very much neer to have forgotten.

Boys love a shanty. Perhaps this is the twin of the urge in girls for a playhouse. They want something their size. It is not entirely the impulse to build that prompts Billy to uhnt up old boards and some nails.

Three-Fruit Salad Is As Easy to Make As It Is Good to Eat

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Fruit in a bowl is only half the story. Fresh fruits have won the American heart, and as a result, we have invented myriad delightful fruit combinatons for salads and deserts.

Three-Frut Salad Bowl
(According to size of family)

Chicory, romaine, watercres, ban-French dressing.

Line large, chilled salad bowl with crips greens. Slice bananas, wash and hul lstrawberries, and slice oranges intd perfect discs without peel or white membrane.

Arrange frult in three sections on bed of greens. Serve each person with some of each of the three fruits. Pass sweet French dressing.

Sweet French Dressing
(1 1-2 cups)

One-alf cup lemon juice, 1-2 cup olive or other salad oil, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon paprika, 1-2 cup red currant jelly or strained honey.

Blend well and chill; Shake before serving.

If yuo like to serve delicate surprises with your tea tray, try these fruit confections; split plump red strawberries stuffed with cream cheese softened with crea; balls of fresh pineapple rolled in grated fresh cocanuts stuffed with cream cheese mixed with garden herbs; orange slices rolled in fresh grated coconnut.

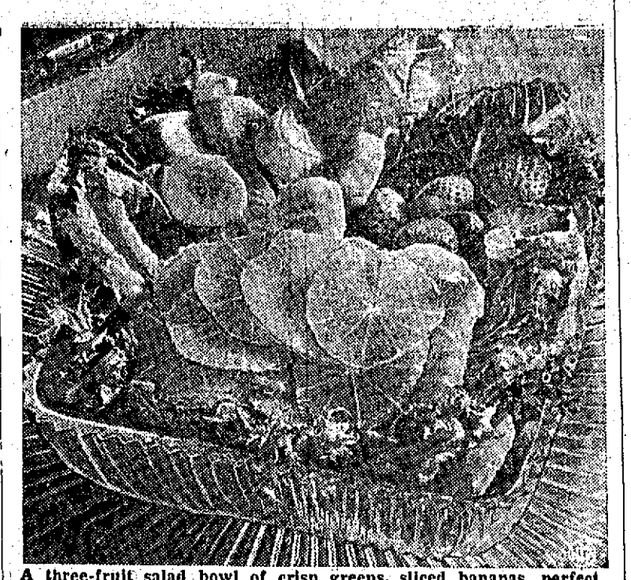

Strawberry Rhubarb Coupe
(1 1-2 pints)

Three cups strawberry rhubarb cut in 1-2 pieces, 2 cups water, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice, 1 teaspoon grendadine syrup, whipped cream, nuts.

Cook unpeeled pink rhubarb with water and sugar very slowly until tender. Then force through coarse sieve. Cool, then combine. Add pinch salt. Freeze.

Serve in tall sherbet glasses.

Fill 3-4 full and top with whipped cream and chopped nuts.

A three-fruit salad bowl of crisp greens, sliced bananas, perfect strawberries and orange discs served with a sweet French dressing. Makes an ideal dish for Sunday supper.

Diz Dean's Advise to Sore Arm Club

Says Cure for Injured Flippers Is to Keep Pitching

CHICAGO—Dizzy Dean whispered a few words of advice into the willing ear of big Clay Bryant, newest member of the Chicago Cubs' sore arm club.

"Keep throwin', Clay, keep throwin'. You got to throw that soreness out."

That's Dean's pet theory and after two years of fussing around with X-rays, specialists and rest cures, old Diz has thrown his arm back into shape with patient hours of toil in batting practice. He has most of his speed back and all his confidence.

Bryant's case has puzzled the X-ray department more than the costly injury of Dean. They know what was wrong with Diz, but not how to cure him. They don't even know what ails Bryant.

All the experts apparently have discovered so far is that the big right-hander, who helped General Bill Lee pitch the Cubs into the world series last fall, just can't throw. He has lost that fast ball most opposing batters, especially the New York Giants, called the fastest in the National league last season.

"Doctors is allright, said Dean, whose claims to being a sore arm expert have some foundation. "But pitchers have got to pitch. Throwin' cured my arm all right. If throwin' won't fix it up, then a pitcher might as well quit."

Dean's theory, which pertains only to muscle soreness, not chipped bones or other pitcher ills requiring surgery, has given Diz the greatest boost since he first crippled his arm in 1937. His relief job against the hit-conscious Brooklyn Dodgers Tuesday was his first exhibition of fast-ball pitching since the early weeks of his last season with the St. Louis Cardinals.

If the cure is complete—and Diz will find out when he starts against the Boston Bees Sunday—the Cubs may move up with Cincinnati as co-favorites for the pennant.

Manager Gabby Hartnett repeatedly has said, "we're a cinch if Dean can pitch." He was, however, counting on Bryant for a repeat performance of his 19 victories in 1938.

Formal Possession of Church Taken by Pope

ROME, Italy—(AP)—Pope Pius as bishop of Rome took formal possession of his diocesan church, St. John Lateran, Thursday with an invocation to preserve peace on earth.

Ceremonies, first of their kind since 1846, filled with medieval pomp and splendor, included evidence that a friendly relation was existing between the Italian government and the Vatican.

These Recipes Are Ideal for Summer Thrist-Quencher

Tall glasses of grape juice with the dry refreshment of fresh lime juice plus a garnish of fragrant mint, produce a cooler to make you forget hot weather.

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Fruit juices wash away your troubles on a sultry day. As coolers they are tops, and their "pick-up" value makes them popular with busy and often-tired people. They literally spark with vitamins.

Grapejulce—Lime Cooler
(Serves 4 to 6)

Four cups grapejuice, juice of 2 fresh green limes, fresh mint, shaved ice.

Combine grapejuice and lime. Stir. Four into tall chilled glasses, add a little shaved ice, put a sprig of mint in each glass.

Sltrus—Tomato Cooler
(Serves 4 to 6)

Two cups tomato juice (fresh or (fresh or canned, unJ.lsolo...S——'y canned), 2 cups grapefruit juice (fresh or canned, unsweetened), juice of 2 fresh limes, and a little fruit syrup if sweetening is preferred.

Combine chilled juices and serve in chilled glasses without ice. This is an unusually good drink and is popular as a cocktail for afternoon parties.

Strawberry—Pineapple Cooler
(Serves 4 to 6)

Four cups pineapple juice (unsweetened), 1 cup orange juice, ½ cup fresh strawberry juice, 2 teaspoons lime juice, pinch of salt, clover honey for sweetening, fresh mint for garnish.

Combine chilled juice and sweeten to taste. Serve with ice cubes.

All of these fruit beverages can be served for breakfast, as cocktails before meals, and as coolers during the day.

Pebs Win Second From Knoxville

Bill Sayles Wild But Delivers in Pinches to Whip Smokies

KNOXVILLE —(AP)— Bill Sayles' wildness got him into a lot of trouble Wednesday but the big Little Rock righthander came through in the pinches to give the Travelers a 3 to 2 decisions over Knoxville, sweeping the two-game series.

Little Rock 010 010 010—3 8 0
Knoxville 001 000 010—2 6 2
Sayles and Ferraioli; Schroeder, Lamanski and Stephenson.

Crax 4, Pebs 2

ATLANTA —(AP)— Harry Johnston pitched his fourth victory, although removed because of ninth-inning wildness, by holding the New Orleans Pels to six hits while Atlanta rapped out a 4-2 victory Wednesday night.

New Orleans 000 101 000—2 6 1
Atlanta 200 001 0x—4 9 3
Ferrin, Stromme and Redmond, Hixon; Johnston, Smoll, Durham and Richards.

Nashville 8, Memphis 7

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—A long hit in the 12th inning by Gene Hasson scoring Cal Chapman won a ball game Wednesday night for the Nashville Vols over Memphis, 8 to 7.

Memphis 000 300 121 000—7 16 0
Nashville 003 040 000 001—4 14 3

Thomsen Is Happy Over '39 Porkers

"We Will Have a Wonderful Squad" Coach Says in Speech

CAMDEN, Ark.—"We will have a wonderful squad ready for next fall," Coach Fred Thomsen of theUniversity of Arkansas Razorbacks told the Lions club at luncheon at the Ouachita hotel Wednesday at noon. "We had the best spring practice in the 11 years I have been at Fayetteville, and if they cut the games to 59 minutes we will win most of them."

Coach Thomsen and Boyd Cypert, business manager of athletics at the university were guests of the Lions. They were here for the annual meetin gof the Arkansas Booster club.

The University of Arkansas is making a success of its athletic program and the Razorbacks are now playing "big time" football, the coach said. He reviewed the 1939 schedule and listed some of the outstanding games. Local boosters and fans would be interested in the T. C. U. game at Fayetteville, the Mississippi game at Memphis, and the S. M. U. game at Little Rock, he said.

The coach invited Camden fans to make the trip to Philadelphia for the Villanova game next fall. In addition to these games the Porkers will play Baylor, Texas, A. and M., Rice and Tulsa, besides the opener.

Coach Thomsen praised the Boosters clubs over the state and he said their cooperation made the athletic program at the university succeed. He also told of the athletic plant and new stadium, saying it was one of the most beautiful in the nation.

Movies of Razorback games were shown by Mr. Cypert.

2 Cars Fertilizer for Hempstead Co.

High-Grade Phosphate to Be Used on Meadows, Pastures

Cooperative orders for two cars of high grade phosphate fertilizer for pastures and meadows has just been made by 40 Hempstead county farmers, according to Oliver L. Adams, Hempstead county agent.

The phosphate is being securied through the AAA from the Tennessee Valley Authority. The farmers will use the high grade phosphate on pastures and meadows according to recommendations made by the Agricultural Extension Service.

The phosphate is of no cash outlay as payments will be deducted from soil-building allowances or budgets of farmers requesting the fertilizer. In addition to letting the farmer's check pay for the phosphate, the check will be increased $1.50 for each acre of pasture or meadow treated if the soil-building allowance is sufficient.

George Ware, assistant director in charge of the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station near Hope, reports that 240 pounds of 30 per cent phosphate gave an increased yield of 442 pounds in weight of beef calves grazed from March 20 to October 16 as a three year average. Mr. Ware further reports that stock on an untreated pasture in 1937 showed a gain of 297 pounds while the superphosphate brought the returns up to 372 pounds per acre.

On a Bermuda grass pasture to which nitrogen was applied 715 grazing days were available while on similar pastures treated with superphosphate, 1446 grazing days were available. Complete details of the pasture results may be had by calling at the Extension office.

Like other crops, the returns from pastures depends upon their yields. If yields can be increased economically, the profits are thereby increased. When the pastures are established and fenced the running expenses are very small. No labor is required for plowing, cultivating, and harvesting but pastures do require some care, such as mowing and fertilization to keep them in good productive condition.

Phosphate fertilizer may be applied at any season by broadcasting.

Many farmers in Hempstead county during past years have failed to earn all payments possible under the farm program. Phosphate applied as the forty farmers who have requested the two carloads are doing, prevents unearned budgets and increases farm income by improving permanent pastures and meadows.

Farmers included in the cooperative order are: W. B. Jones, J. S. Wilson, Mrs. V. M. England, J. A. Porterfield, O. F. Ruggles, D. M. Collier, Leo Collier, J. E. McWilliams, H. C. Collier, H. H. Huskey, Riley Lewallen, O. L. Reaves, A. H. Wade, Mrs. W. E. Simmons, O. T. Rider, S. R. Hamilton, J. Mark Jackson, Roy Franks.

J. M. Powell, George R. Wolff, Earl Martindale, J. R. Campbell, Dick Nelson, Lee R. Jones, Clyde Owens, G. W. Lawson, Hix Dildey, A. C. Crowell, Rubert Chambers, Thomas Jones, A. J. Owens, A. W. Stubbleman, G. S. Samuels, L. C. Sommerville, J. L. Anderson, J. A. Haynes, W. V. Frazier, H. M. Stephens, S. E. Loe, and Warren Nesbitt.

U. S. Interests Being Threatened Says Hull

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary Hull told congress Thursday that this country's vital interests were "being threatened in increasing number of places and to an increasingly alarming degree."

Hull testified before the house appropriations sub-committee during hearings on the annual supply bill for the state, justice and commerce departments.

Based on the sub-committee's findinds, the full appropriations committee recommended $121,399,120 to run the three departments during the new year starting July 1.

Miller Insists On

Harry J. Lemley, Hope, recently nominated for "roving" federal district judge, was an appointment for Mrs. Caraway, nad that he should be given the choice of a man for marshal.

The senators are in reported agreement that Sam Rorex of Little Rock should be appointed federal district attorney there.

Mrs. Caraway is reported to have insisted that Pettie be reappointed, making the argument that Lemley was associated with Miller's last campaign, as well as with her own, even if Miller did endorse Al Meehan of Stuttgart for the judgeship. She is known to have claimed that her record as a consistent New Deal senator entitles her to greater consideration than Miller, who has opposed some administration proposals.

Bund Leaders May Face Prosecution

LaGuardia Turns Information on Dodging to Dewey

NEW YORK—(AP)—In the first attack of its kind made on the pro-Nazi German-American bund here, Mayor Laguardia Wednesday night turned over to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey a series of tax-dodging accusations against National Bund Leader Fritz Kuhn and others.

The mayor submitted "for such prosecuting action as you may deem proper," the report of an inquiry made by William B. Herlands, the city commissioner of investigation. In it Kuhn, seven other individuals and four corporations were accused of having been involved in city sales and allied tax delinquencies.

Those mentioned in the report, which did not have the force of a formal criminal charge, were:

Kuhn, president of the bund, the German-American Business League, Inc., the A. V. Publishing corporation and the German-American Front, Inc.

The German-American Business League, Inc., as a corporation.

Max Rapp, treasurer of the German-American Business league.

William Leudtke, secretary of the league.

The A. V. Publishing corporation, publisher of the bund's organ "Deutscher Weckruf und Beobachter."

Richard Metting, treasurer of the A. V. corporation.

James Wheeler-Hill, national secretary of the bund and secretary of the A. V. corporation.

Max Buchte, a tailor whose shop manufacturers uniforms for bundsmen.

Car Hits Cow

BOONEVILLE.—Three Booneville men are in a serious condition in the Sparks Memorial hospital at Fort Smith as the result of a car wreck about 1:30 a. m. Wednesday.

Injured are Luke Cheek, 23, Booneville taxi driver; Glenn Owens, 21, and Grady Fields, 23.

Cheek, son of Mrs. Kate Cheek, an employe of the reade department store of Fort Smith, suffered a heead injury. He was thrown into a ditch by the impact. Cheek was driving the car when it struck a cow.

Owens, son of Mrs. Cora Owens, has a broken leg, bruises and cuts and possibly internal injuries.

Fields, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Fields of Booneville, suffered cuts and bruises and an ear was cut off. He was the only one ofthe three who was conscious when picked up. Fields has a wife and one child.

The wreck occurred about eight miles west of Booneville.

WASHINGTON — Senator Pepper of Florida has treated his collegues to one of the highest pressuered vote-gathering campaigns in current memory with his effort to put across the Florida ship canal.

Five million dollars worth of canal was dug with WPA funds and Pepper wants approximtely $200,000,000 more to cut guey across the isthmus deep and wide enough for battleships to use.

Before the debate began he had pitctographs strung about the Senate chamber, one designed to demonstrate that Florida ship canal would carry cargo equal to the combined cargo going through the three major world canals, Suez, Panama and Kiel.

He has buttonhold every senator on the floor. Economy senators lumphim and other appropriation hunters into a group they called the "spending guild" and tried to popularize the term as means of heading of such outlays as that for the Florida canal.

Regardless of Pepper's optimism, you couldn't round up much of a wager that the canal would get the money.

Reynold Steals Show

Senator Reynolds of North Carolina has about taken over the show business in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on neutrality legislation.

Reynolds is anything but a retiring mouse. During the hearings he sits right at the elbow of the witness, his rosy suits and roiser face all agleam. He is the junior member of the committee and so has to wait until the last to ask questions. That bothers him not a whit.

He is tremendously enthusiastic about keeping American isolated, especially from England, and when he starts firing questions they can be heard along two blocks of Senate corridors. It is geting so the crowds don't really pay much attention until Reynolds gets going.

He tired early of witnesses who didn't answer questions the way he wanted them to. Lately he has adopted his own system. He worked it on Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State, although it happened they were pretty much in agreement.

"I'll ask you a series of questions," said Reynolds, "and then I'll answer them myself." Which he did, and Colby barely got in a word.

A Wearin' of Green

It seems there are other jobs besides policemen's developing for Irishmen. They are coming to the Senate. With the appointment of Senator Slattery of Chicago the list of pure Irish names now counts up to five and there may be more hidden among the various "Mc's." Irish names besides Slattery are Donahey of Ohio, Danaher and Maloney of Connecticut, and O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

White House Scene:

Two tourists standing near the private west entrance to the President's executive office. A short, hurried little man with a mop of graying hair rushes by, enters without knocking.

"Say," speculates Papa Tourist, "that fellow went in without knocking. Wonder if we could." But no.

"That fellow' 'was Tommy Corcoran.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

"STOPPING" ACTION

Speeding train, taken at box-camera shutter speed. Not blurred, because moving almost directly toward camera.

THE best way to get clear, sharp action pictures is to use a camera with fast shutter action—and, of course, a correspondingly fast lens.

However, many of us don't have fast cameras. So, to take pictures of real action, showing fast-moving objects without blur, we must utilize several simple tricks.

The first trick is -shoot moving objects when they are coming almost straight toward or straight away from you. An object appears to move much slower when receding or approaching and, in a picture, is less likely to blur.

A second trick—move the camera so that the speeding object is kept centered in the view finder as you shoot. This trick is especially good with boats, motorcycles, and racing automobiles. The background is blurred—but the moving object will be sharp. Of course, the camera must be moved smoothly and steadily, and a little practice is necessary. You will find that with a little practice, pictures taken in this manner are very effective.

A third trick—snap action during momentary pauses. These occur in most sports. A player is moving rapidly—he halts for just a fraction of a second, to turn or change direction—and in that split-second you get your picture. You must keep alert to catch these pauses—but they're worth it.

Take a couple of rolls of film and try a few action shots, using the tricks I've described. You'll be surprised at the things you can do with your simple box camera or inexpensive folding model!

SERIAL STORY

DATE WITH DANGER

BY HELEN WORDEN

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: Police tell Duke about dragging the body of Janice French from the river. Duke burns her pictures, but, he recalls, there are other rich girls in New York!

CHAPTER VIII

MARY, Ladd and Fenelon left the morgue knowing a crime had been committed but while Janice French was dead, there was no evidence to connect Duke Martin or Nick Hart with her suicide.

"The only thing to do now," said Ladd, "is to soft-pedal this. Martin and Nick will think the whole affair is forgotten. Meanwhile we can build up evidence against them."

He spoke irritably. Sleep was heavy upon him.

The commissioner pressed his hand to his forehead. "I must call this girl's mother and father. They are heartbroken."

"You can use the 'phone in this office, Commissioner," said Ryan.

Ladd stared reflectively at Mary. "You're coming back with me and write this story."

Mary nodded. A vision of Janice's mother and father rose before her eyes, aristocrats who lived a cotton-batten wrapped existence, shut away in a great Fifth Avenue mansion, from the realities of the world.

How much did they know? Would they be willing to face notoriety? Mary doubted it.

Once the Frenches heard of Janice's death they would never discuss her again. Mary knew they wouldn't come to the inquest. They'd send Thomas Robinson, their lawyer, instead. The funeral would be private. This, as far as the world was concerned, would end the story of Janice French.

Ladd's voice interrupted Mary's thoughts. "Come," he said. "I'll phone you from the office, Commissioner."

* * *

THERE was an indolent calm in the editorial offices of the Gazette as Mary walked in. She had left Ladd in the hall. The hurly-burly and fever of a fictional newspaper was missing. Here, on New York's biggest paper, a city, a nation and a world were being covered with serenity and precision.

The editorial offices were the antithesis of the mad, helter-skelter movie version of the crowded, tobacco-smoke filled city room in which copy paper covers the floor, reporters sit with feet on desks and hats pulled down over their eyes, an editor bawls everybody out and copy boys play poker.

The Gazette city room was large and airy. Sound-proofed ceilings gave it the quiet of a library.

The Society section lay directly back of the Wall Street department. But neither staff was down at this early hour. Only the lobster shift, the skeleton staff that came on at midnight and left when the first edition went to press, was there to assemble early news.

Crossie, his lanky body telescoped like a jack-knife, sat at the main desk, editing copy. Pecking away at nearby typewriters were re-write men and general reporters. Like most of them, Crossie wore a green celluloid eyeshade and from behind one ear protruded the stub of a yellow pencil. His soft shirt was open at the throat and a nondescript vest flapped about his lean body. He glanced up as Mary came toward him.

"Do the Janice French story from the suicide angle," he said. "Play down the night club slant and don't mention the Duke. We're waiting for the copy," he added.

Tired as she was, Mary smiled. Crossie was always waiting for copy. Like some benevolent Simon Legree, he nagged his staff forever into producing more copy.

It was also characteristic of him that he asked nothing about the night's happenings. Shut up in the office of the Gazette, he seemed to know more than the reporters who'd been covering the story. When he apparently knew least, he'd suddenly surprise them by a question that revealed the crux of the whole situation.

* * *

DAWN was breaking as Mary sat down at her desk. She fitted carbon and copy paper in her typewriter, lit a cigaret and began tapping the typewriter keys.

"The body of the girl in the pink chiffon dress which was brought into the morgue late last night has been identified as Janice French of 902 Fifth Avenue. Police Commissioner Arthur Fenelon believes it a suicide case, but an inquest is to be held. . . . Miss French, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John French, made her debut in . . ."

Rolling the final sheet out of the machine, Mary called "Copy," lit another cigaret and leaned back in her chair.

Ladd had gone to his office when he left Mary in the hall. Now, as Mary called for the copy boy, he stuck his head out the door.

"Let me see what you've written before you hand it in."

She walked across to his office, the typewritten sheets in her hands.

One or two of the reporters looked up as she passed, their inquiring expressions changing to appreciative stares. In spite of lack of sleep, over-excitement and the strain on her emotions, she was more than pretty. Her evening gown, sloped provocatively off her shoulders, and as she walked, her feet, in delicate gold sandals, showed gracefully from beneath the hem of her gown. Ladd's eyes, like those of the men in the outer room, brightened as he saw her. "You can certainly take it," he said.

"I'm running on nerves."

* * *

WHILE she talked, he was studying her copy, pencilling it occasionally. As he leaned on the desk, his angular form bent down the better to read the piece, Mary's dark eyes, off guard for the moment, rested affectionately on him. There had never been any sign of intimacy between this hard-boiled editor and herself and, so far as Ladd had shown, it had always been NEWS that concerned him when he was with her, but this morning for the first time Mary allowed herself to wonder about her boss. Though he had never paid her any particular attention, he was a type she liked. Now and then in the past he had stopped at her department to ask some question and once a month she had sat across from him at the inter-office meetings but this acquaintance had never gone further. Now everything between them seemed on a new footing.

She dropped her eyes suddenly as he looked up and a slow flush mounted her cheeks. She was being absurdly romantic. Idiot!

"Okay," he said, handing back the copy. "What about something to eat before you take that week's sleep. Ever try the Plaza for breakfast?"

"In this dress?" glancing at her evening gown.

"Why not? It won't be the first time anyone has breakfast at the Plaza in evening clothes. I'll meet you in the lobby."

Mary picked up a test copy of the Gazette on her way out. There was her story with a one-column head on it and her by-line beneath. She was glad Crossie had played the whole thing down. She wanted the Duke to believe she had decided to soft-pedal the affair. That was the line she intended to take with him—no use raking up dead bones—forget the whole thing.

"I've decided not to sleep for a week," she remarked to Ladd as she climbed into a taxi with him. "I'm going back to the Dove again tonight."

Ladd looked at her sharply. "You're up against a couple of killers. I don't think you can handle them alone!"

"I'm willing to take my chance."

When Shoes Are A Headache

That music at a New York night club was really too good, so debutante Mary Jane Cudahy kicked off her slippers as she terpsichored with Harry Nair Smith and went to town. Other smartie-set dancers at the club soon followed her example.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.
